

Ready America Provides Emergency Supplies to Wildfire Victims

For Immediate Release

VISTA, Calif. – (November 15, 2018) – Ready America, the nation’s leading disaster supply business, has answered the call by providing much needed emergency supplies to victims of the devastating wildfires in California.

Ready America fulfilled a FEMA emergency drinking water order for 68,000 liters of bottled water for Chico, California, to assist in disaster relief.

The disaster supply leaders also delivered thousands of N-95 Niosh dust masks to their customers in all regions directly affected by fires throughout southern and northern California, including the Malibu and San Gabriel Valley areas north of Los Angeles, San Francisco and the Sacramento area.

“As specialists in how to prepare for and react to disasters, we understand what people in these affected areas are going through,” said Ready America CEO Dean Reese.

“We didn’t hesitate to respond when the request from FEMA came in because we knew residents of all of those areas needed our help immediately.

“When a disaster such as these wildfires strikes, it is imperative that communities in need are assisted as quickly as possible, and in this instance, we were in a position to help and we gladly did so.”

Mr Reese added that being prepared is the best defense against any disaster, natural or manmade, and as such, it is vital that people everywhere ensure that they have at least three days’ worth of emergency supplies on hand at home and at work.
